Hint for VZ-200/300

EVER wanted to restore to a particular line number? This short routine will let you do it. In VZ basic, RESTORE simply sets the DATA LINE POINTER to the byte before the first program line. This routine makes the line number in the statement X=USR (line number) and calls a ROM routine to find the line in memory. It then moves back one byte, and stores this as the new DATA LINE POINTER.

An undefined statement error is given if no such line exists. This routine is stored in the cassette name buffer, but can be stored anywhere in memory.
